

Presenting: How to Command Attention in Virtual Spaces

Description

In today's professional landscape, the ability to deliver content in an engaging and persuasive manner is more important than ever—especially in online settings. Online presentations offer numerous opportunities to captivate audiences and elevate the overall quality of your delivery. This e-training presents the special features of presenting online. Participants will explore various media and methods, learning how to apply them strategically to create impactful and memorable presentations.

Target Audience

Employees with and without management positions who have basic experience in "analog" presentations but want to learn more about the new possibilities of online presentations

Learning Objectives

- Understanding the unique features of online presentations
- Knowing the basic functions of common tools
- Preparing optimally for online presentations
- Conducting a successful technology check
- Using different media effectively in online presentations
- Applying methods to maintain the audience's attention and focus online